

Onbrina

“Onbrina” is what Prosecco used to be called in the Treviso province of North Eastern Italy where this wine is made. Onbrina Prosecco is made in a totally traditional way, right down to the hand-made bottle closure using the classic “spago”.

Italians choose Prosecco as their ideal celebration drink, a fresh, fruity and uncomplicated “bubbly” which is now fashionable all around the world and offers great value for money.

ONBRINA | Prosecco frizzante DOC

Onbrina is “the” perfect aperitif: the bubbles are gentle, the nose has a classic, grapey Prosecco character and on the palate the wine is very soft, but perfectly balanced with refreshing, lively acidity.
